

Open Design Engine - Feature # 152: Add "Create new page" button to wiki system

Status:	New	Priority:	Normal
Author:	J. Simmons	Category:
Created:	07/24/2013	Assignee:
Updated:	11/07/2013	Due date:
Subject:	Add "Create new page" button to wiki system
Description
From a user: "I just realized (as I was writing this email) that I can create a new wiki page by simply entering /wiki/newpage into the URL and viaola it pops up. I save and can then link to it. While that's great, it took me a while to figure that out. It may be good to add a "add new page" button somewhere, so it's a little more obvious."

History

07/24/2013 06:21 pm - Christopher Sigman

I believe the reason it's done this way is to try and reduce orphan pages, i.e. pages that aren't linked to by another page within the Wiki.

If it's decided to implement this, it will also require the addition of a way to set the title of the page (as a note to remember later)

11/07/2013 04:01 pm - J. Simmons

- Estimated time set to 6.00

Comments

- J - if we implement this, we should also add an auto index page so users can find orphaned pages
- Chris - index (vs list of orphaned pages) would not be too hard