Subject:	Open ID Integration

Description

The idea is to allow users to log in with the same accounts they have from other sites, such as Google, using OpenID. This will make it so that if they choose to, their authentication will be done through them, and if they are logged in on that site and navigate to ODE, they are logged in on ODE as well. There's some capabilities for this already for Redmine, so it should not require reinventing the weel.
